CHARLIE DRESSEN — THE MANAGER

CHARLES "CHUCK" DRESSEN is beginning his second season at the helm of the Braves. Under his astute and capable direction, the Tribe won 88 games in 1960, two more than the previous year to record a second place finish in a hotly contested senior circuit pennant chase.

One of the colorful skipper's greatest assets is his ability to transfer his great enthusiasm for the game and fierce desire to win to the players under his command and, as spring training got under way, Charlie and his 1961 edition of the Milwaukee Braves were optimistic regarding the Tribe's chances of outdistancing their seven league foes during this summer's campaign.

Charlie was born September 20, 1898 in Decatur, Illinois and his first professional experience was gained with the Moline Club of the Three-I League in 1919. Six years later, he donned his first major league uniform as the Cincinnati Reds third-baseman, a position he held from 1925 through part of the 1931 season. In 1933, he played his last big league game as a member of the New York Giants.

The next season saw Dressen return to Cincinnati as the team's manager, after a short stint as pilot of the Nashville Vols of the Southern Association. He directed the Reds from 1934 through 1937. He later piloted the Brooklyn Dodgers to a pair of pennants in 1952 and 1953 and, his last managerial position prior to coming to Milwaukee, was with the Washington Senators in 1956 and 1957. In 1958 and 1959, he served as a coach with the Dodgers. Charlie and Mrs. Dressen make their home in Los Angeles.

THE COACHING STAFF

WHITLOW WYATT — This outstanding pitching coach is beginning his fourth season as the Braves' mound advisor. He knows the fundamentals of pitching inside and out and is especially adept at working with the younger members of Charlie Dressen's hill staff. Before joining the Braves, he experienced a varied and successful career. After winning 23 games for the Milwaukee Brewers in 1938, "Whit" went on to win 106 major league games with the Tigers, White Sox, Indians and Dodgers. He then both managed and coached the Braves' farm affiliate team at Atlanta before joining the Philadelphia Phillies as pitching coach from 1955 through 1957.

GEORGE MYATT — Foremost among George Myatt's many talents is his ability to transmit to the players his great enthusiasm for the game. Besides working with the infielders, Myatt has been especially helpful to Dressen while drilling the Braves on methods of base-running and sliding. During the games, his tremendous desire to win makes him one of the most enthusiastic coaches in the game. Prior to joining the Braves, Myatt served as a coach with the Cubs, White Sox and Senators. George and Mrs. Myatt make their home in Orlando, Florida.

ANDY PAFKO — Pafko ended his 17 year playing career in the National League last season by accepting an appointment to Charlie Dressen's coaching staff. During his long and successful career, Andy, who was born in Boyceville, Wisconsin, played in three World Series and was selected to represent the senior circuit in four All-Star Games. As a player, Andy personified the word "hustle" and his do-or-die diving catches and head-first slides became his trademarks. He was one of the most popular players ever to wear a Braves uniform. Ellen and Andy make their home in Chicago.

THE FARM AND SCOUTING DEPARTMENTS

Following the completion of the 1960 season, it was decided to expand the Braves' Scouting and Farm System departments. This expansion would afford more concentration on these two vital phases of a baseball organization.

The veteran Ray Hayworth, long regarded as one of the most capable talent hunters in the game, was appointed Director of Scouting. His responsibilities and efforts will be directed toward the Player Procurement end. The Braves will have extensive coverage in the scouting field under Hayworth's leadership.

Mullen will continue to direct the Braves vast farm system which, down through the years, has been one of the most successful in all baseball and which has developed player talent in abundance for the parent club. Mullen will be in charge of Player Development, as the free agents signed by Hayworth's staff will be turned over to the farm system.

The Braves felt that with the growth of competition in the free agent field, it was necessary to have both a Player Procurement and Player Development Departments.

Area Supervisor Scouts will continue to direct activities in their particular territories. Ted McGrew will continue as Liaison Scout to handle special assignments.

1961 BRAVES PLAYER SKETCHES

45 BOTZ, Bob — PITCHER ... This West Allis righthander's rapid improvement the past two seasons has resulted in his being given the opportunity to earn a spot on Charlie Dressen's 1961 pitching staff. Despite the fact that he stands only 5' 10½" and weighs just 165 pounds, Bobby's fast ball has accounted for more than 100 strikeouts during five of his six minor league seasons. But it is his remarkable control, combined with his speed, that makes Botz a prime bullpen candidate for 1961. While toiling for Indianapolis and Louisville last year, Bobby issued only 33 bases on balls in 183 innings or approximately a walk and a half per nine innings. During Louisville's stretch run for the American Association pennant, Botz was considered one of the mound corps starters along with Bobby Hendley and Don Nottebart and his pitching helped the club to the Little World Series victory over Toronto. The year before, with Jacksonville, the Milwaukee born hurler won 17 and lost 9 and fanned 156 batters while compiling a 2.55 earned run average. Bobby is regarded as a topnotch competitor who fields his position in excellent fashion and is a good hitter.

ROBERT ALLEN BOTZ

Born in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, April 28, 1935. Height 5:10½. Weight 165. Throws and bats right. Signed by Eddie Dancisak. Married and has one child. Played winter ball with Bradenton of the Florida Instructional Program.

30 BRUNET, George — PITCHER ... George's spectacular mound work with Louisville early last season resulted in a call by the Braves in June to join them in San Francisco. With the Colonels, after having been obtained from Kansas City, the 6' 1", 193 pound hard-throwing lefthander was nearly invincible. In winning four games against just one loss, George completed four of five starting assignments, allowed only 31 hits and 13 walks in 46 innings and fanned 53 batters while compiling a masterful 0.78 earned run average. With the Braves, the Houghton, Michigan native won two games without defeat and struck out 39 hitters in 50 innings. Before hurling in the National League for the first time last season, George spent parts of three seasons with the Kansas City Athletics. He has all the tools to be a real asset to Charlie Dressen's plans for 1961.

GEORGE STUART BRUNET, JR.

Born in Houghton, Michigan, June 8, 1935. Height 6:01. Weight 193. Throws left and bats right. Married. Played winter ball for Caguas of the Puerto Rican Winter League.

40 BUTLER, Cecil — PITCHER ... At 6' 4", 195 pounds and only 23 years of age, Butler is considered a Braves star of the future. The hard-throwing right-hander was the property of the Atlanta Crackers of the Southern Association when he won 12 games for Panama City as a rookie in 1957. The Braves were affiliated with Atlanta that season and promptly chose the big Georgian as a working agreement selection. The next year, he won 14 and lost only six for Waycross while compiling a 2.34 earned run average and earned a 1959 promotion to Jacksonville where he finished with a fine 3.23 ERA. Last season, he divided the campaign with Austin and Louisville where his combined earned run average was 2.79.
For every nine innings Butler has pitched in the minors, he has allowed only eight hits and two walks and fanned seven. Experience is the only thing Cecil lacks to become a future senior circuit moundsman.

10 BUHL, Bob — PITCHER ... Bob proved once again in 1960 that he is one of the top hurlers in the senior circuit by winning 16 games and losing only nine. It was the fourth time in the past five seasons that Bullet-Bob has accounted for 15 or more major league victories. Not only was the Saginaw native a consistent winner in 1960, but his excellent 3.09 earned run average was the Tribe's lowest and ranked him ninth among the loop's most effective pitchers. It was the sixth time in his eight years with the Braves that Bob finished among the league's top ten in this respect. During the past campaign, the fast working moundsman was especially effective against the World Champion Pittsburgh Pirates, measuring them three times in September and four of five times during the season. Never before had the former paratrooper worked 239 innings in a season and he climaxed his great year by winning his 100th major league game in his last start of the season at Pittsburgh to make his overall big league won-lost record an imposing 100-61.

33 BURDETTE, Lou — PITCHER ... Lou Burdette, master of control, also mastered opposing hitters in 1960 to the extent that he won 19 games and worked his first major league no-hitter. Only once during this great righthander's eight years in a Milwaukee uniform has he failed to post 15 or more victories and his average number of wins during this time is 17 per season. Twice he accomplished the difficult feat of winning 20 games and, in two other campaigns, fell just one win short of the magic total. But it was on August 18th at County Stadium last year that Lou experienced the thrill of holding the Philadelphia Phillies hitless for nine innings. To add frosting to the cake, the great competitor doubled to open the Braves eighth inning and soon after scored the contest's only tally. The fidgety veteran has the enviable knack of putting the ball wherever he wants to. In eleven complete games last season, Lou failed to walk a batter and in four other contests he permitted only one pass to first base. Overall, he walked just 35 batters in 276 innings, or 1.13 per nine innings. In the 1957 World Series against the Yankees, Lou became the first pitcher since 1920 to win and complete three Series contests and the first since 1907 to achieve two shutouts.

36 MAC KENZIE, Ken — PITCHER ... Great things are expected of Ken in the Braves bullpen in 1961. He was considered the outstanding relief ace in the American Association last season after spending the months of May and June with the Braves. Although he fanned nine batters in eight innings for the Braves, it was decided that the Canadian youngster lacked experience and with the Colonels, Ken not only gained the necessary experience the Braves felt he needed to be a major leaguer, but he practically set the triple-A league on fire. He walked only 11 batters in 75 innings while striking out 34 and compiling a 2.40 earned run average. He then pitched extremely well, as the Colonels won the A. A. playoffs and followed with several sensational performances against a hard-hitting Toronto team as Louisville won the Little World Series. Indicative of his ability, Ken has never pitched below Double-A ball since joining the Braves in 1957 after graduating from Yale University. He was converted into a relief pitcher for the first time by Ben Geraghty at Louisville in 1959 and he responded by seeing action in 51 games while winning six games and losing only two.

20 McMAHON, Don — PITCHER ... After three years of being one of the outstanding pitchers in baseball, Don experienced a slump in 1960. A relief pitcher's job is one of the toughest and most demanding assignments in the game and during the 1957, 1958 and 1959 seasons, the hard-working righthander won 14 games while losing only eight. In 187 frames, Don fanned 138 batters and compiled an outstanding earned run average of 2.65. Last year, Don won only three games while finishing with a 5.91 ERA and Braves officials are confident that he will rebound in 1961 to the form which saw him set an all-time Braves record by making 60 appearances in relief in 1959. He did an exceptional job in both the 1957 and 1958 World Series, holding the Yankees to two runs in eight innings and fanning ten. Don's "bread and butter" pitch, the fast ball, enabled him to be selected to the 1958 N. L. team for the annual All-Star Game. His spectacular relief pitching from mid-season on in 1957 was one of the main reasons the Braves won their first Milwaukee pennant. In 32 games, the rookie's earned-run-average was 1.53.

32 NOTTEBART, Don — PITCHER ... There is a good chance that this hard-throwing righthander from Massachusetts will earn a job as a starting pitcher with the Braves during the 1961 season. For the fifth time in the last six years, Don totaled 18 or more victories (including last year's playoffs) and his overall won-lost record is a sparkling 98-57. He opened the 1960 season with Louisville and, after winning eight and losing four for the Colonels, joined the Braves on June 30th. During his three week stint with the Tribe, Don experienced the thrill of his first major league victory by pitching four innings of scoreless relief ball against the Cardinals. Soon after, Don returned to the American Association and his five post-season victories proved a major part in the Colonels' winning of the playoffs and Little World Series. Earlier in his outstanding and successful career, Don registered 18 victories for Wellsville, Evansville, Atlanta and Louisville. The durable and hard-working hurler's best pitch is a slider.

57 OVERBY, Dennis — PITCHER ... During the 1960 spring training sessions, it appeared as if the Braves had located their next Warren Spahn. Overby, a native of Chetek, Wisconsin, had followed his almost fantastic 1959 success as a rookie in class-D ball at McCook by showing a tremendous amount of ability and poise while doing his spring conditioning with the parent club. The lefthander was sent to Cedar Rapids to open the 1960 season and was off to an excellent start when he developed shoulder stiffness because of the sub-normal spring, temperature-wise, that Cedar Rapids unfortunately experienced. The Braves decided to take every precaution with the outstanding prospect and he was sent to Austin, Texas because of the warmer climate and the fact that the Tribe had decided on a youth movement for the Austin club. With McCook in 1959, Dennis worked only 93 innings but fanned 136, including individual game marks of 18, 17, 17, 17, 15, 14, 13 and 12, to be tabbed the Nebraska State League's Outstanding Major League Pitching Prospect. His best pitch is a fast ball.

35 PICHE, Ron — PITCHER ... Ron came through with many pleasing performances in relief last year and the experience he gained during his first major league season should benefit him greatly in 1961. He opened the campaign with the Louisville club last season and, after 14 appearances in which he fanned 25 batters in 26 innings while putting together a 1.73 ERA, the Braves issued a call for him to join the parent club. From May 18th, the Canadian answered the rescue call on 37 occasions and received credit for three victories. His pitching record was a good one — 48 hits and 23 walks in 48 innings as against 38 strikeouts and a nifty 3.56 earned run average. Ron came into his own at Louisville in 1959 when Ben Geraghty kept him in the bullpen all season. In 53 games, he struck out 131 batters in 125 innings, won eight games and turned in a 2.95 earned run average. A sinking fast ball and exceptional control are Ron's more important assets and his overall earned run average since joining the Braves organization in 1955 is 2.84.

52 ROOF, Paul — PITCHER ... At 18 years of age, Paul is the youngest player on the Braves roster. After completing high school in Paducah, Kentucky last June, the younger brother of Braves catching prospect Phil Roof signed a contract offered by Braves scout Dick Keely and was sent to Eau Claire, where he compiled a 2-3 record during the remainder of the season. His best pitch is a fast ball and he sent 26 Northern League batters back to the dugout on strikes during the 42 frames he worked. He has good size — 6' 3", 190 pounds — and Braves officials are confident that, with the necessary grooming in the Braves productive farm system, the righthander can look forward to a fine major league future. Oddly enough, Paul is now a teammate of one of his baseball idols, Lou Burdette.

21 SPAHN, Warren — PITCHER ... Although "Spahnie" is almost unanimously considered the greatest lefthand pitcher in National League history and has won award after award, there was only one honor which had eluded him up until 1960 during his fantastically successful 16-year career in the senior circuit — the thrill of pitching a no-hitter. Last season, on September 16th against the Phillies in his 568th senior circuit appearance, Warren warmed the hearts of Braves fans by finally reaching his goal. Making the event an even more memorable occasion was the fact that the win gave Spahn his 20th victory for the 11th time in his career and the seventh in eight years in Milwaukee. Only Cy Young (16), Christy Mathewson (13) and Walter Johnson (12) have reached the magic 20-win total more often than the veteran Spahn. His 288 wins and 51 shutouts are league records for a southpaw and he has led the N. L. in the following departments: games won — 7 times (including 4 ties), innings pitched — 4 times, complete games — 6 times (1 tie), ERA — twice, strikeouts — 4 times (1 tie) and shutouts — 3 times (1 tie). Spahnie has fanned 100 or more batters for 14 consecutive years and went over the 2,000 mark last year. He has averaged exactly 20 wins per season for the past 14 years after copping eight in 1946 when he won his first major league game at the age of 25. Warren was named the top N. L. pitcher by The Sporting News in 1953, 1957 and 1958, the Braves' MVP by the Milwaukee Baseball Writers in 1956 and 1958 and winner of the Cy Young Award in 1957. His total of 288 victories are only 12 shy of his next goal — 300 victories, a feat accomplished by only five since the turn of the century — Johnson, Mathewson, Alexander, Plank and Grove.

16 WILLEY, Carl — PITCHER ... This quiet righthander from Cherryfield, Maine probably pitched more scoreless innings than any hurler on Charlie Dressen's 1960 mound staff, but for some unaccountable reason, experienced late-inning difficulties which held down his victory total. The fact that Braves batters scored less runs for him than for any other Braves starter was another reason for his 6-7 won-lost figure. Carl should be a solid starter along with Spahn, Burdette and Buhl in 1961. After winning 21 games for Wichita and being selected as the American Association's Most Valuable Player in 1957, Willey was promoted to the Braves and gave indications of great things to follow by being named the senior circuit's Rookie of the Year in 1958. In just one-half of a season, Carl won nine games and led the loop with four shutouts. The 1961 season could be a big one for the Maine righthander.

1 CRANDALL, Del — CATCHER ... Del's outstanding season last year resulted in his receiving the Milwaukee Baseball Writers' Manning Vaughn Award as the Braves' Most Valuable Player for 1960. Del has had many fine seasons as testified to by his selection to seven National League teams for the All-Star Game during the eight years the Braves have represented Milwaukee, but none anywhere near as successful or satisfying as the past campaign. Del not only batted .294, his top major league bat mark, and improved his own club record for runs batted in by a catcher to 77, but accepted what many baseball experts considered an impossible task for a pull hitter of Crandall's reputation — that of batting in the difficult and most important second spot in the batting order — and came through in brilliant fashion. Time after time, he hit the ball to the second base side or opposite field and worked the hit and run; and there was no doubt that the major league veteran who became a major leaguer at 19 years of age had experienced a season which Braves' fans will long remember.

17 ROOF, Phil — CATCHER ... As a 19-year old youngster, Phil Roof donned a Milwaukee Braves uniform last September 7th and remained with the club until the end of the season. Although he did not see any action during the senior circuit stretch drive, Roof spent a great deal of time learning more about his position from his boyhood idol, Del Crandall, while also making himself useful as batting practice catcher. Braves officials feel he has all the tools to someday be a fine catcher in the tough National League. He is big enough at 6' 2" and 190 pounds and is an excellent receiver. His arm is strong, he hits the long ball and is an astute student of the game. He opened his career with Midland in 1959 and performed for Cedar Rapids last season. Phil is a brother of Braves' pitcher Paul Roof.

15 TORRE, Joe — CATCHER ... For several seasons, Braves' scout John "Honey" Russell observed Joe's abilities as a Brooklyn high school pitcher, first baseman and third baseman and decided he was not a major league prospect. However, he recommended that the burly youngster try his luck behind the plate. Torre did just that and Russell soon realized he had found his natural position and signed him to a Braves contract. Joe was sent to the Bradenton club of the Florida Instructional Program to polish his receiving and surprisingly led the club's hitters with a fine mark of .346. In his first professional season with Eau Claire last year, he continued his outstanding progress by collecting six hits in eleven at bats in a double-header on the final day of the season to win the league batting title with an excellent .344 figure. He was also selected the Northern League's Rookie of the Year and was a member of the loop All-Star Team. This past winter, the brother of former Brave Frank Torre gained added experience at Bradenton and is slated to catch for a higher classification club in the Braves farm system in 1961.

6 LAU, Charley — CATCHER ... This personable and hard-working receiver served as Del Crandall's understudy last season and is embarking on his second campaign with the Braves. While spelling Crandall last season, Lau played errorless ball, computing 94 putouts and 11 assists. He originally attracted the Braves attention in 1959 when he blasted 20 home runs, drove in 79 runs and batted .292 for the Louisville and Charleston entries in the American Association. When the season ended, Lau was purchased from the Detroit Tigers farm club. Prior to donning a Braves uniform, Lau served parts of the 1956 and 1958 seasons with Detroit. He was signed by Braves' General Manager, John McHale, in 1952 when McHale served as Detroit's Farm Director.

49 RANEW, Merritt — CATCHER ... This fine backstop prospect added to his stature as a future Braves star by batting at a lofty .364 clip for Yakima of the class-B Northwest League last season for the highest batting average of any player in the Braves' ten-team farm system. Although Ranew, at 5' 11", 170 pounds is not as husky as most receivers, he makes up for this somewhat lack of size with his smooth receiving, strong throwing arm and ability as a hitter. His performance last season earned him his league's most coveted award, the Most Valuable Player nomination and he also was named to the loop All-Star team, an honor he had previously annexed in the Nebraska State League, the New York-Pennsylvania League and the Florida Instructional Program. In addition, he was named to the National Association's Lower Classification (B, C, and D) 1960 All-Star Team. The lefthand hitter trained with the Braves at Bradenton in 1959.

26 TAYLOR, Bob — CATCHER-OUTFIELDER ... Taylor hit 17 home runs, drove in 80 runs and batted .270 for Louisville last season to earn the opportunity to win a spot with the Braves for 1961. Heavily in his favor is the fact that the former Metropolis, Illinois schoolboy wonder can play two positions with equal ability — behind the plate and in the outfield. Last year, he participated in 67 games behind the plate and an additional 57 in the outfield where his running speed and strong arm made him a valuable asset. Bob was one of the most sought after prep catchers in the country when the Braves inked him in 1957. Since then, he has done everything expected of him in the Braves fine farm system. In full seasons, he batted .297 for both Cedar Rapids and Atlanta before joining Louisville last year. Bob is only 22 and has a bright major league future ahead of him.

9 ADCOCK, Joe — INFIELDER ... While leading the Braves regulars in batting last season with an excellent mark of .298, "Big Joe" experienced his second best season during his fine eleven year career in the National League. Only in 1956, when Joe belted 38 home runs, drove in 103 runs and batted .291, did he surpass his feats of last season which included 25 round-trippers and 91 rbi's. In addition, he was the league's leading fielder at his position. When he puts his 6' 4", 220 pound frame into his swing, Joe can hit a ball as far as anyone in the game and last season he again added another legendary blow to his mounting collection. On April 14th in Philadelphia, the Louisiana belter became the first right hand hitter ever to drive a ball over the rightfield scoreboard at Connie Mack Stadium. In earlier years, Joe became the first hitter to reach the centerfield bleachers at the Polo Grounds and to clear the double-decked leftfield stands at Ebbetts Field. He has also hit the longest ball to centerfield at Milwaukee County Stadium and Braves fans will never forget his fantastic feat of hitting four home runs and a double in one game at Ebbetts Field in 1954.

In a four club deal, the Braves obtained pitcher Russ Meyer from the Philadelphia Phillies for first baseman Earl Torgeson, then sent Meyer to Brooklyn for infielder Rocky Bridges and outfielder Jim Pendleton, and then traded Bridges to Cincinnati for Adcock, February 16, 1953.

4 BOLLING, Frank — INFIELDER ... General Manager John McHale was elated when he finally closed the deal which brought Frank Bolling, one of the finest players in the American League, to Milwaukee last winter for four Braves. In Bolling, the Braves acquired a seven year Tiger veteran who is equally known for his fielding and hitting abilities. As proof of his fielding prowess, Frank led American League second basemen in fielding in 1958 and was voted the outstanding second baseman in the league. In 1959, his steady defensive efforts fell only one game short of the league record when he compiled a streak of 72 consecutive games without a miscue. At Detroit, he was rated the best fielder at his position since Charlie Gehringer. He moves with grace in the field, making difficult plays both to his right and left. He has a strong, sure arm and was rated the best pivot man in the league on double plays. His credentials as a hitter and clutch performer are just as strong. In 1958, he was selected as Most Valuable Tiger because of his consistent contributions at the plate and ability to come through in the clutch. Bolling's best year was in 1958, when he hit 14 home runs, drove in 75 runs and hit .269 in 154 games. He is the brother of Milt Bolling, former A. L. infielder.

23. LOGAN, Johnny — INFIELDER ... Little did "Yatcha" realize back in 1947 when he joined the Braves' Evansville farm club that the very next season he would don a uniform he would wear for the following 13 years — that of a Milwaukee club. After seeing action with Pawtucket and Dallas in 1948, Johnny finished the season with the Milwaukee Brewers of the American Association. He batted .286 and .296 the next two seasons before dividing the 1951 and 1952 campaigns between the Brewers and Boston Braves. Johnny became a full-fledged big leaguer when the Tribe moved to Milwaukee in 1953 and promptly set a National League record by leading all shortstops in fielding for three consecutive years. In 1957 and 1958, Johnny experienced the thrill of participating in sport's greatest classic — the World Series — and his errorless fielding and clutch hitting proved extremely helpful in the Braves winning the 1957 World Championship.

During his ten years with the Braves, the personable Logan has hit 92 home runs and batted for an average of .270.

34 MARTIN, Billy — INFIELDER ... Martin is known as one of the most colorful and aggressive players in the game and a player greatly respected for his competitive ability to come through in the clutch. As a New York Yankee in five pressure-packed World Series, the fiery Californian rose to the occasion and compiled a .333 composite batting average. Sensational is the only word to describe his batting achievements in the 1953 Classic. He batted an even .500 to lead all hitters, amassed 23 total bases to break Babe Ruth's record and personally wrapped up a Yankee world championship by driving in the winning run of the Series. He was acquired by the Braves from Cincinnati during the past winter where he batted .246 in 103 games. In addition to the Yankees, Billy has played for Kansas City, Detroit and Cleveland, his lifetime batting average is .258.

41 MATHEWS, Eddie — INFIELDER ... The "Brookfield Bomber" was a unanimous choice as major league third baseman of the year last season and it was an honor well deserved by one of baseball's most feared sluggers. Mathews lived up to his reputation as one of the greatest home run hitters the game has ever known by blasting 39 home runs to surpass the feats of such renowned belters as Hank Greenberg, Al Simmons, Rogers Hornsby and Chuck Klein and move into twelfth spot on the all-time list with an accumulation of 338 roundtrippers. By adding 32 homers to this total in 1961, Eddie could move past such exceptional players as Ralph Kiner, Joe DiMaggio, Johnny Mize, Duke Snider and Gil Hodges and into 7th place on the all-time list. Eddie's value as a clutch hitter was never more apparent than last season when he consistently came up with the "big" hit while driving across 124 runs, only two less than Hank Aaron's league-leading total. During his nine years with the Braves, Eddie has amazingly averaged 38 four-base blows and 100 runs batted in per season.

11 McMILLAN, Roy — INFIELDER ... The Braves were extremely pleased last winter to announce that Roy McMillan, one of the finest fielding shortstops in National League history, would be wearing a Milwaukee uniform in 1961. Since joining the Cincinnati club in 1951, Roy has built a solid reputation as a fielding wonder. Day-in and day-out, the slim Texan makes all the plays and is considered the finest shortstop in baseball at going into the hole between short and third and getting his man. He wasn't noted for his ability at the plate during his early years with the Reds, but slowly improved to the point where he compiled a batting average of better than .260 during four of his last six seasons and hit a total of 19 home runs in 1959 and 1960. In 1957, 1958 and 1959, Roy led the league in fielding at his position, and in 1956 and 1957, he opened the All-Star Game at shortstop for the National League. Although he weighs just 165 pounds, McMillan is one of the most durable players in the game. During six consecutive years in the circuit, Roy participated in 150 or more games.

18 MANTILLA, Felix — INFIELDER ... Felix again proved to be one of the senior circuit's most versatile players by seeing action at second base, shortstop and in the outfield in 1960. During the final days of the pennant campaign, he replaced Johnny Logan as the Braves' regular shortstop and, in seven games batted a satisfactory .276 while playing flawless ball afield. Although he is only 26 years old, Felix's natural talents have made him a veteran of five major league campaigns, five minor league seasons and two World Series. When he is not playing regularly, his speed and savvy make him an excellent pinch-runner and his ability to hit the long ball makes him a dangerous pinch-hitter. He began his career at the age of 17 with Evansville and also saw action with Jacksonville, Toledo and Sacramento enroute to Milwaukee.

12 ROACH, Mel — INFIELDER ... For the second time in the last three years, Mel's batting average with the Braves reached the magic .300 mark. When he was not busy compiling his .300 average on 42 hits in 140 at bats, Mel was playing four different positions — first, second and third base and the outfield — to rank as the Braves' most versatile player in 1960. He has always been regarded as a good hitter as testified to by his .289 overall average since joining the Braves organization as a bonus player in 1953.

Unfortunately for the former Virginia football All-American, injuries have hampered him during much of his career. This was especially true in 1958, when Mel all but won the second base position from Red Schoendienst only to be sidelined for the remainder of the season with a torn ligament. Before earning his big league berth, Mel gained experience at Atlanta, Jacksonville and Wichita.

19 RODGERS, Andre—INFIELDER ... Last winter the Giants indicated they would like to have the Braves' Alvin Dark as their manager and, in the transaction which made this possible, the Tribe obtained the services of a promising shortstop—26 year old Andre Rodgers.

During his three seasons with the Giants, Andre impressed Braves officials with his speed, strong arm and ability to hit the long ball and he should prove to be an asset in 1961. His story is rather unique because, as a boy in Nassau he played cricket and it wasn't until he was 17 that he came in contact with our national pastime. His progress was quick. Two years later, in 1954, he began his professional career with Olean and then hit .387 for St. Cloud the next year. By 1958, he had progressed to the point where he led the Pacific Coast League with a .354 average while accounting for 31 home runs and 88 runs batted in. Last year, he was the National League's second ranking pinch-hitter with a .437 average.

28 BEDELL, Howard—OUTFIELDER ... Bedell continued to progress in the Braves' farm system last season to the point where he is now considered a challenger for an outfield berth with the 1961 Braves. Dividing last season between triple-A clubs Louisville and Sacramento, Howie compiled an average of .272 while participating in 137 contests.

A speedster who knows how to put his speed to good use, he is considered one of the fastest players in the entire Braves' organization and is extremely adept in the art of bunting. On the bases, he is a daring baserunner and in the outfield, he has proven he can make all the plays.

His career has been most successful thus far since he joined the Braves' organization after attending West Chester State Teachers College. He confirmed scout John Ogden's faith in him by batting .289 for Boise, .292 for Jacksonville and .303 for Austin prior to the 1960 season.

44 AARON, Hank — OUTFIELDER ... "Hammerin' Hank" lived up to his nickname again last year by experiencing the type of season that most players can only dream of. He swung a run-producing bat which drove in 126 runs to lead the major leagues and, in collecting 20 doubles, 11 triples and 40 home runs as part of his 172 base hits, he totaled 334 total bases, another major league high. At only 27 years of age, Hank has now led the major leagues in total bases three times, in runs batted in and hits twice and in home runs, slugging percentage and batting average once each.

Considering the National League alone, Hank has topped the circuit in total bases four times, batting average, runs batted in, hits and doubles twice and home runs, slugging percentage and runs scored once. His composite batting average for two World Series is .364 and he has been chosen to represent the N. L. in the All-Star Game for six consecutive years. In addition, he is one of baseball's most talented outfielders. In 1957, Hank was selected as the senior circuit's Most Valuable Player. Last year, Aaron set a National League record by hitting a home run in every league park for the seventh consecutive season.

43 COVINGTON, Wes — OUTFIELDER ... During his career with the Braves, this husky, hard-hitting outfielder has proven he is capable of being one of the most respected players in the senior circuit. From the left hand side of the plate, Wes has boomed out 64 home runs in 459 games for an average of one every seven games, despite the fact that in many of his appearances he was used solely as a pinch-hitter. He gave concrete proof of his ability in 1958, when, despite injuries which limited his play to 90 games, he accounted for 24 home runs, 74 runs batted in and a .330 batting average. A product of the farm system, as is every outfielder on the Braves' roster, Wes has also played for Eau Claire, Evansville, Jacksonville, Toledo and Wichita. His spectacular catches in the second and fifth games of the 1957 World Series were major factors in the Braves' World Series triumph.

29 DEMERIT, Johnny — OUTFIELDER ... Last spring, Johnny trained with the Braves at Bradenton and, although he showed good all-around ability, it was decided that he could use an additional year of experience and he opened the season at Louisville. With the Colonels, the Port Washington youngster not only gained from every day play but compiled his highest batting average since casting his lot with professional baseball. His plate mark was .270 and he hit 12 home runs and drove in 50 runs in 126 games. Johnny has never had any trouble running, throwing or fielding. A natural athlete, he played basketball at Wisconsin after setting a state high school dash record and winning 16 prep letters at Port Washington. His natural talents made him a fine all-around baseball player and his speed has helped him in the field and on the bases. With Atlanta in 1958, he staged one of the most amazing power demonstrations in minor league history by blasting home runs in four consecutive plate appearances.

25 SPANGLER, Al — OUTFIELDER ... Al did everything that was asked of him last season as a rookie and should be a tremendous asset to the Braves in 1961. Always known as a fielder of the highest caliber, the speedy Pennsylvanian proved he is more than helpful at the plate as well by coming through with clutch hits time and time again. Because of his clutch performances, he was of much more value than his .267 average might indicate. In the field, he lived up to his reputation as a fielding wonder by making many outstanding and sometimes sensational plays. At the plate, he is primarily a "spray" hitter and is considered one of the most proficient bunters in the game.

After two year of All-American recognition at Duke University, Al joined the Braves organization in 1954. His fine batting marks of .292 and .297, along with his excellent all-around play in the American Association in 1958 and 1959, served as his most important stepping stones to the big leagues.

24 MAYE, Lee — OUTFIELDER ... Lee proved again in 1960 that he could hit major league pitching. For the second time in his two year major league career, he ended the season with a batting average of .300 or better. In 1959, as a rookie, he solved senior circuit hurling for an even .300 mark and last year finished at .301. Before being called up to the Braves in 1959, Lee was demolishing American Association curving to the tune of .339.

When he was sent to Louisville for 72 games this past summer, he again showed disdain for A. A. moundsmen by batting at a .337 clip. Lee's playing record since joining the Braves' organization in 1954 is studded with flashy batting averages. In addition to the above figures, he batted .319 twice for Boise, .320 for Yakima, .330 for Evansville and .318 for Austin. While at Austin and Evansville, he missed winning league batting championships by just a few percentage points. Lee is a professional singer during the off-season and has "cut" several records.

42 GABRIELSON, Len — OUTFIELDER ... Len is considered one of the finest prospects to join the Braves' organization in many years. From the left side of the plate, he combines his 6'4", 205 pound frame with a smooth swing that should propel many baseballs out of National League parks in future years.

After showing outstanding professional promise while earning his letter with the University of Southern California nine in the summer of 1960, Len selected the Braves from a host of interested big league clubs and was sent to Jacksonville for his baptism into organized baseball. In a league noted for its large ballparks, Len managed to connect for 10 home runs while driving in 68 runs and batting a creditable .279. As a reward for his fine job, he was called to Milwaukee last September 7th and participated in four games during the remainder of the N. L. pennant chase. Len's ambitions, outside of a successful baseball career, are to finish his college education and someday enter the field of his major study — foreign relations and international diplomacy.

27 McDONALD, Wayne — OUTFIELDER ... Wayne proved to be one of the outstanding rookies in organized baseball last season by batting at a lofty .359 clip in 76 games for Quad City of the class-D Midwest League. Prior to joining the team in mid-season, McDonald was an all-conference selection while playing for Texas University in the Southwest Conference. He is big (6', 185 pounds), has good speed and is considered an excellent hitter. Wayne averaged better than a hit a game last season (104 in 76 games) and his total included 19 doubles, four triples and eight home runs. In just one half of a season, he drove in 62 runs, many in key situations. Back in 1952, Wayne, at 13 years of age, was a member of the San Antonio team that won the Pony League World Championship.

Divided the 1960 season between Jacksonville and Austin before winning four games and losing none for Bradenton of the Florida Instructional League during the past winter. His unblemished record and outstanding pitching earned him the loop's "outstanding righthander" award. Signed with the Braves organization in 1958 after nearly every big league club clamored for his services when he graduated from high school. He broke in at Eau Claire that summer, then went to Midland where he won nine, lost two and struck out 87 in 83 innings. He began the 1959 season with Cedar Rapids and, though he fanned 46 batters in 46 innings, he had trouble keeping his blazing fast ball over the plate and was sent to Boise. He pitched brilliantly for the Pioneer League entry, setting a league record by pitching 31 consecutive scoreless innings and fanning 154 in 121 innings. The 20 year old righthander is definitely one of the Tribe's finest prospects for future big league stardom.

Unmarried. "Big Abner" divided the season with Austin and Jacksonville last season after compiling a very creditable record with Cedar Rapids in 1959. That year, he got off to sensational start, winning seven of his club's first nine wins. By the season's end, he had won 13 games for a last place club, had led the loop with 187 strikeouts and finished second with 206 innings pitched. His best pitch is a good fast ball. Larry allowed only 43 hits in 57 innings while winning four and losing two for Bradenton of the Florida Instructional Program this past winter.

56 NIEKRO, Philip Henry — PITCHER ... Louisville Roster. Born April 1, 1939 in Blaine, Ohio. Resides in Lansing, Ohio. Ht. 6:01. Wt. 180. Throws and bats right. This relief ace accomplished the almost impossible feat of jumping from class-D in 1959 to triple-A by the close of last season. After signing with the Braves in 1959, Phil went to Wellsville, then to McCook where he won seven of eight decisions. He was so impressive in fanning 48 batters in 52 innings while compiling a 3.12 earned run average that it was decided to advance the Ohio righthander to class-A ball at Jacksonville in 1960. With the South Atlantic League entry, Phil won six games, allowed only 66 hits in 84 innings and put together a fine 2.77 earned run average. Advanced to Louisville, Phil participated in six games and finished with a 3.60 mark. Phil's best pitch is a knuckleball. He hurled for Bradenton of the Florida Instructional Program the last two winters.
